

Cohen, Natalie

OECD

Natalie Cohen heads up the Regulatory Governance for Global Challenges unit within the Regulatory Policy Division at the OECD. She leads on international regulatory cooperation, agile regulatory governance, including regulatory experimentation, and the Better Regulation in the Digital Age (BRIDGE) initiative. Natalie has around 15 years of applied policy experience working for the UK government, where she worked in the Better Regulation Executive and Cabinet Office, followed by the French government, where she led on simplification policy and investments in transformational digital projects, before joining the OECD. She spent the early part of her career at AXA UK in the insurance sector.
